

Module	SE101.3 -OOP with Java – 25.3
Lab sheet Number	01
Areas covered	Java Programming Fundamentals

1. Write and execute the commands that you can use to check:
 - Java compiler is installed and running properly.
 - Java interpreter is installed and running properly.
 - Java version installed on the machine.
2. Write your first Java program to display “Hello World” on the screen. Please use the command line (cmd) to execute your code.
“Syntax to save the code in a file "ProgramName.java" (Typical capitalization for file names).”
3. Write a program to display your name on the first line and to display your degree program on the second line on the screen. Please use the command line (cmd) to execute your code.
4. Write a program to input two numbers and display the total, subtraction, multiplication and division.
5. Write a Java program to input the name and the birth year and display whether he/she is a teenager or not.
6. Write down a program to get the following output using a for loop. Repeat the same example by using a while loop.

Executing Loop 0
Executing Loop 1
Executing Loop 2
Executing Loop 3
Executing Loop 4